PREFACE.

IN compiling this list care has been exercised in selecting only such words as are in common use, and most likely to be mispronounced, — thus making the game a real help and education, rather than a mere chance to display an acquaintance with the unusual words found in some lists of similar scope.

Webster's International Dictionary has been followed both in pronunciation and in the diacritical marks used for indicating the sounds of the letters.

The game is designed especially for the use of teachers, reading circles, socials, and the home.

DIRECTIONS FOR PLAYING THE GAME.

SELECT the best orthoëpist in the company to hold the "Key" and act as referee. Distribute the cards, one or more, to each member of the company. The referee directs a member to announce the number of his card and begin by spelling aloud and pronouncing. He pronounces the ten words without interruption. If, in the judgment of the referee, the words have been pronounced correctly, the player lays the card aside as one card won. If errors have been made, the referee, without comment, orders the card to the next, who pronounces all the words again, and so on until some member wins the card. If, after all have had a trial, the card remains untaken, start it again, and as soon as a word is mispronounced the referee orders the card passed to the next, who begins with the first word as before, and so on until the card is won. All remain in the game while there are cards untaken. Ties may be declared off by another contest, with the tied members only as contestants. The member holding the most cards wins the game.

"PRONOUNCIT" will be mailed to any address upon receipt of price, 35 cents. Address,

J. W. HOWELL,

Bellaire, Ohio.
