INSTRUCTIONS

The participants of the party select a judge to whom this book is entrusted. Each player spins the donkey.

The number to which the donkey's feet point, is the number which the judge refers to in his book for penalty. The player must perform whatever stunt is imposed upon him.

The game is continued until every-one present has performed a stunt.

This game can also be played by score. After each player spins the donkey 10 times in rotation, the numerals are added and the highest score wins.
